SAVING STARTS WITH YOU

Saving money is a powerful step toward a more secure financial future, no matter your circumstances.

While everyone's goals may differ, simple strategies can make saving easier and more consistent.

Start by paying yourself first through automated savings. Setting up a recurring transfer each payday turns saving into a habit instead of a decision you must revisit each month. Even small amounts grow over time, and automation helps ensure that progress continues during busy or unpredictable seasons.

Strengthen your savings by using a 24-hour pause before non-essential purchases. This pause encourages you to step back and consider whether the item truly fits your needs or budget. It helps reduce impulse spending by giving your mind time to shift from emotional reacting to intentional decision-making.

MS. ROOSALINA'S CORNER

Money can do a lot of good things, especially when you have a plan for it. One easy way to get started is by remembering three simple ideas: Spend, Share, and Save.

When you get money from an allowance, gift, or doing chores, divide it between Spend, Save and Share. Making a budget can be exciting, and it helps you build great money habits early.
